Civil Air Regulations Amendment 61-11
Effective: May 17, 1946

DEVIATION FROM ROUTE

Effective May 17, 1946, § 61.731 of the Civil Air Regulations is amended to read as follows:

61.731 Deviation from route. No scheduled air carrier aircraft shall deviate from its authorized route, except when operating in accordance with traffic control instructions issued by a control tower or control center or when circumstances render such deviation necessary as a safety measure. In the latter case any deviation of more than 25 miles from the authorized route shall be explained by the pilot in a written report to the Administrator of Civil Aeronautics. Such report shall be made within 7 days after the completion of the flight.
